

THE Episcopal CHURCH

APRIL 15, 2012 – SECOND SUNDAY OF EASTER

WEBCAST: THE INTERSECTION OF POVERTY AND THE ENVIRONMENT

The Episcopal Church invites you to join a live webcast, “The Intersection of Poverty and the Environment,” at www.episcopalchurch.org on Saturday, April 21, beginning at noon Eastern / 11 a.m. Central / 10 a.m. Mountain / 9 a.m. Pacific. The webcast will also be available to watch on-demand, free of charge, after the event.

Streaming live from location at St. Mark’s Episcopal Cathedral in Salt Lake City, Utah, the two-hour ecumenical forum will be moderated by Kim Lawton of PBS’s Religion & Ethics NewsWeekly. The Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, Katharine Jefferts Schori, who is a former oceanographer, will offer the keynote address, and panelists will include Bonnie Anderson, president of the Episcopal Church’s House of Deputies and author of Spirituality and the Earth; Exploring Connections, along with ecumenical experts on the environment and poverty.

Viewers may submit questions to the panelists during the live webcast via e-mail: publicaffairs@episcopalchurch.org.

The forum is also available on-demand for viewing on Earth Day (April 22) and afterward, making it ideal for group viewing and discussions, Sunday school, and adult forums. A facilitator’s guide and resources such as bibliography, discussion questions, Sunday school lessons, and useful links are available online at www.episcopalchurch.org/intersection.

These images are from the documentary film “Kivalina,” from the Episcopal Church’s series Wayfarer (<http://episcopaldigitalnetwork.com/wayfarer>), to be shown before the webcast, and which delves into the challenges brought by environmental issues facing a 1,000-year-old village in the Arctic Circle.
